What governance process is in place?

Your portfolio comes with ongoing governance. This simply means that our investment experts check it regularly. It allows us to maintain the best mix of assets in line with the risk category - and to make sure it is performing in line with its overall objectives - aiming to give you the best returns. The value of your investment can go down as well as up and you may not get back the value of the original investment.

If our experts decide that the mix of assets needs to be adjusted, it happens automatically on your behalf, you don't need to do anything. What's more, this service comes at no extra cost.

Details of changes to the portfolio

The following table documents the last 3 changes that Royal London have made to this portfolio.

Effective Date of Change	Overview of Changes
05/11/2026	Governed Portfolio Conservative Global equity markets have remained volatile, with weakness in technology-related stocks weighing on broader equity performance over the last month. Government bonds have provided diversification, although yields remain elevated against a backdrop of resilient growth and persistent inflation. Commodity markets have also experienced some volatility, following on from a strong year of gains. Against this backdrop, we are maintaining our equity position, adding to government bonds to reduce our underweight, and taking profits on commodities.
22/10/2026	Governed Portfolio Conservative Equity markets have weakened as concerns over AI infrastructure spending and softer earnings expectations weighed heavily on technology and semiconductor stocks, with Asian markets leading global declines. Volatility has risen notably, with the VIX recording its largest weekly rise since May. Meanwhile, government bonds rallied as investors sought safer assets, driving yields lower despite resilient economic data and persistent inflationary pressures. Against this backdrop, we are reducing our overweight position in equities and increasing exposure to government bonds, reflecting a more cautious near-term outlook while retaining flexibility should investor sentiment and earnings expectations improve.
08/10/2026	Governed Portfolio Conservative Government bond yields continue to rise across the major developed markets with higher energy prices due to ongoing geopolitical risks an important driver. Elsewhere, resilient economic data and a more hawkish tone from central banks have continued to add further upward pressure. Against this backdrop, we are maintaining our underweight position in bonds and overweight position in commodities. Despite these pressures, global equities have once again eclipsed all-time highs, with the S & P500 marking its first record close since August. We are adding marginally to the asset class, noting strong corporate earnings.
